

Neri: the story of a family

For more than a century the Neri family has been living Mount Etna with all their businesses.

It was at the start of the 20th century when two brothers, Vincenzo and Salvatore (a promising young tenor singer), migrated to the US to look for better fortune.

Fortune arrived quickly thanks to the many sacrifices and Salvatore's voice, who became a passionate protagonist of the Italian lyrical music in the New York theatres.

When this promising singer suddenly passed away, his brother Vincenzo decided to come back to his motherland and with the money earned together with his brother, he bought some land in Linguaglossa, at the bottom of Mount Etna. Here he married a town girl and together they focus on the farming of vineyards and olive groves.
